COMMISSIONERS IN REGULAR SESSION

County Judge Arthur H. Rothe, A. A. Bader, Commissioner of Precinct No. 1, Robert Rihn, Commissioner of Precinct No. 2, Oscar W. Tondre, Commissioner of Precinct No. 3, and Fred Bowman, Commissioner of Precinct No. 4, comprising the Commissioners' Court of Medina County, met in regular session at 10 A. M. Monday, September 8, at the courthouse in Hondo. The following business was transacted:

The Court heard the petition signed by D. M. Howard and more than 100 qualified voters in Justice Precinct No. 5, calling for a Local Option election to determine whether or not the sale of beer containing alcohol not exceeding 4% by weight shall be prohibited in that precinct. The Court ordered that a Local Option election be held in the Precinct on September 27, 1941. It was also ordered that the election be held in the following legal voting places in the Precinct:

Election Box No. 9 Natalia, at the public school building, with J. F. Riley acting as Presiding Judge.

Election Box No. 10, East Devine, in the Thompson building, with Geo. T. Brisce Jr. acting as Presiding Judge.

Election Box No. 11, Black Creek, in the public school building, with W. H. H. DuBose acting as Presiding Judge.

Election Box No. 19, West Devine, in Justice of the Peace court house, with G. M. Turner acting as Presiding Judge.

The Court ordered that Commissioner Rihn sell as junk two old trucks owned by the County and used by Commissioner's Precinct No.
2 and now completely worn out. The amount received in case of approval of the sale shall be credited to Pr.
No. 2 Road and Bridge Fund.

The Court voted to accept the application of A. J. Finger of D'Hanis as public weigher of the D'Hanis Justice Precinct and appointed him to serve in that capacity after giving bond and qualifying in accordance with law. The Court also appointed Mrs. John McCoy as judge of election Precinct No. 9, Natalia, to fill the vacancy caused by Carl Johnson having moved from the county.

The Court heard the petition of Martin Schmidt and seventeen other taxpaying citizens of Justice of the Peace Precinct No. 6, Biry, for the appointment of John Watson as Constable of the J. P. Precinct. After due consideration of the petition by the Court, it was granted by unanimous vote and Mr. Watson was ordered to give the required legal bond and fulfill all other legal requirements prior to taking over the duties of the office of Constable.

There being no further business, Court recessed subject to the call of the County Judge.

MURPHY H. D. CLUB

The Murphy H. D. Club met at the home of Mrs. E. W. Brucks on September 10th. Seven members and two guests were present.

A short business meeting was held,
in which Exhibit Day was the chief interest. The club decided to have an educational booth on exhibit day.
Mrs. Geo. Bohnfalk was named chairman for the arrangement of the booth. Mrs. L. A. Wiemers was appointed chairman of the commodities that members of the club are donating for the commodity sale.

Miss Hambleton then took charge of the program. She first mentioned the demonstrations that are to be taken up in 1942, namely the bedroom and the orchard.

Rug making was the chief subject discussed by Miss Hambleton. In her program she discussed the different types of rugs that can be made. Materials to be used, color schemes, and approximate costs were stressed. "Avoid using too many colors when making your first rug," explained Miss Hambleton. "Only one or two colors should be used."

Refreshments consisting of fruit salad, cookies, and hot tea were served by Mrs. Brucks.

ST. JOHN'S FESTIVAL BIG SUCCESS

The St. John's Catholic parish annual festival Sunday, September 14, set a record for both large attendance and financial success. There were attendants from far and near,
and personal mention of all would be a physical impossibility.

The festival was opened with four masses in St. John's Church.
An abundance of food was prepared and the vast throng was dining from 11:30 to 3 and there was plenty for many to have supper before leaving for their homes. The amusement stands were generously patronized by all and the funds realized from all the features will be used toward paying off the debt on the school building.

This annual event becomes more popular with each repetition, and neighboring towns sent large delegations, San Antonio, Devine, Castroville, LaCoste, D'Hanis, being all noteworthy in this particular.

At the request of Father C. Garcia and on the behalf of the entire parish we are authorized to extend the thanks of the Parish to all who attended and by their generous patronage contributed so materially to a reduction of the Parish school debt.

We are permitted to say in their behalf that you will be welcomed at the next annual event, and the same effort will be expended to provide for your pleasure and satisfaction.

LIONS TO MEET WEEKLY

With the advent of fall, the Hondo
Lions Club has resumed its weekly

23 at Cotulla, and W. L. Windrow was named to represent the local organization. A dinner and dance honoring Geo. R. Jordan, International President, will be held at the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio on September 27 and a number of Lions and their wives plan to attend. The local club is again sponsoring marking of street parking lanes in Hondo.
The work will get under way next week.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Old Boy Adolphus and the predicament he is in there in Russia, is like it was in the story a fellow in Oregon used to tell. This Oregon fellow's father told it to him so it has been around some. It is about old enough for us to be hearing it on the radio any day now. So I will tell it first—you can't tune out a column.

Anyway, this Mr. Hitler rushing head-long into Russia is like the story about the bear that chased the farmer's wife. A neighbor passing by saw the chase and he hurried out into the farmer's field and he hollered, "hey! Henry, there is a bear in the barn with your wife."
And the farmer hollered back,
and he says, "did my wife chase the bear into the barn or vice versa?" And the fellow says,
"the bear chased your wife." So the farmer picked up his hoe and went back to work, and he says,
"well, if that is how it happened, let the bear look out for his ownself."

Yours with the low down,

JOE SERRA.

HORNBY HAS A BIRTHDAY

Two old-timers and long-time friends of H. P. Hornby, editor of the Uvalde Leader-News, in the persons of Charles Filleman and Fletcher Davis, chaperoned and chauffeured by their respective daughters, Mrs. Felix Richter and Miss Anne Davis, motored to Uvalde
Tuesday to attend a birthday dinner in honor of Mr. Hornby's 65th birthday. There were a hundred or more guests seated at the banquet table, most of them elderly men but some not so old. Many different places and almost every occupation and profession were represented.

Mr. Hornby began his newspaper career as a printer's devil at 15 years of age at Pearsall. In or about the first of 1898, he and Walter Trickey (who was a special guest at the banquet), then little more than boys, established the Uvalde Leader. Mr. Trickey returned in a few months to Pearsall, but Mr. Hornby stuck it out and has virtually grown up with his town—once a struggling cow-town, now a progressive modern city. The ingathering for this occasion of so many of the men whom he had worked with and for was a marked appreciation for the man and filled his heart with both pride and pleasure.

The guests presented Mr. Hornby with a beautifully engraved plaque as a memento of the occasion, and all wish him continued good health and prosperity through many more returns of his natal day.

Next to Mr. Hornby, about the happiest man among those present was our own fellow-townsmen, Mr.
Filleman. Mr. Filleman was a longtime citizen of Uvalde, before coming to Hondo, and for four years was Tax-Assessor of the County.
This was his first visit to Uvalde in twenty years, and renewal of acquaintance with the friends of long ago whom he met brought him genuine pleasure.

SORRY WE MISSED YOU, FLETCHER

Fletcher Davis, for more than a quarter of a century Editor and publisher of The Hondo (Texas) Anvil
Herald, and a native of Marshall County, recently visited the scenes and friends of his youth.

On his return home he published the following about his trip:

A visit to the scenes of ones boy-hood days which we left some 46 years ago, while affording many pleasures, is not unmixd with some sadness. Our only living aunt, last of the generation to which our parents belonged, will soon be 90 years of age. Our only living sister, nearing her 79th year, is in a low state of health. Our only living brother is still active for a man of his years, now nearing his 82nd birthday. These facts more than our own age make us conscious of the rapid flight of time. The old homestead where we were born, was growing a crop of cotton, the house having long since been demolished, and the old pear tree, one of the cherished landmarks about which happy childhood memories cling, is at the point of death.
Still there is an urge to journey back, as if to some sacred shrine,

R. A. ZIMMERMAN PASSES

We are in receipt of a notice of the death of R. A. Zimmerman, better known as Grandpa Zimmerman, of Ireton, Iowa, who had many relatives in Medina County. He and his daughter, Hannah, made many friends during their frequent stays in Hondo, where they had apartments with Wm. J. Ney and Miss Bertha Newton. They spent seven winters in Hondo and Mr. Zimmerman always hoped to be strong enough to return, as he enjoyed the winter climate in this section. The following is taken from a lengthy obituary appearing in an Ireton, Iowa, paper:

Richard Aaron Zimmerman was born at Frieberg Ostfriesland, Germany, Nov. 3, in the year of 1845, and passed away at his home here Friday evening, August 29, at 11:45, having reached the age of 96 years, 9 months and 26 days. Mr. Zimmerman was Ireton's oldest resident. Death was due to old age.

At the age of eight on Sept. 8, 1853, he came to America with his parents and settled in Alton, Ill., and then Nokomis. While still in his early years he contributed to the family income by helping with a truck garden in Alton, Ill. He was confirmed in the Lutheran faith at Madison County, Illinois, on March 29, 1861, and was a faithful member of the Lutheran church through all his life. At the outbreak of the Civil War he worked for the U. S. government, in St. Louis, Mo., making harness. He was united in holy wedlock in 1871 to Miss Gertrude Garrells, of Nokomis, Ill. To this union were born 6 children. In 1884 Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman and family came to Ireton. In the same year he built the home he lived in until his passing, or for 57 years. Mr. Zimmerman first owned a grocery store and later had a hardware and implement store. Mrs. Zimmerman preceded him in death, having passed away in Sept. 1929. A daughter, Lena Zimmerman Moeller, also preceded him in death in the year of 1910. Mr. Zimmerman was an extensive land owner and owned many properties in Ireton.

He leaves to mourn his death, John, of Ireton, Matilda Niehous of Granada, Minn., Hanna Zimmerman of Ireton, Mrs. Bertha Struck of Fairmont, Minn., and Mary Hagge of Ireton, 15 grandchildren and 24 great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. John Dirks and Mrs. George Friericks of Le Mars and a host of relatives and friends and acquaintances.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 at the home and 2:30 o'clock at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Rev. Krieger officiating. Interment was made at the Ireton Cemetery.

Mr. Zimmerman was one of the 8 charter members of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

SEBASTIAN EDWARD RIEBER DEAD

Death came suddenly to Mr. Sebastian Edward Rieber of Hondo on the morning of Tuesday, September 16, 1941. There was no warning of his death as he was feeling as well as usual and he had done his usual chores, when a sudden heart attack brought the end.

Mr. Rieber was born October 25, 1867, and would have been 74 years old on his next birthday.

Besides his widow to mourn his death, he leaves two sons, Edgar and Harold of Upper Hondo, two daughters, Mrs. Hugo Batot and Mrs. Oscar Batot of Hondo, and seven grandchildren.

Interment was made Wednesday morning in Oakwood cemetery, following a funeral service conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. Garcia, in St. John's Catholic Church. The pallbearers were his nephews, Bill Breit, Edwin Filleman, Louis Lutz, Clinton Rieber, Alfred Rohrbach and Cletus Batot.

A more extended sketch of the life of Mr. Rieber will be given in another issue.

HONDO, TEXAS, SEPT. 19, 1941

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The recent shake-up in the government defense agencies is a leading topic of cloakroom conversations here, and a great deal of comment centers on the widespread confusion that led to the reorganization. Those familiar with the situation agree that in the past the entire defense picture has been needlessly muddled. To substantiate their story they point to numerous examples.

The manner in which various government agencies compete with each other for available supplies of raw materials furnishes them with a case in point. While they admit that proof is hard to obtain, they have a strong impression that some departments are using larger quantities of strategic materials like copper and steel than they can actually use. This does mean little immediate good, and it frequently works a hardship on many private industries who are unable to obtain enough of these materials to meet their needs.

At the present time these departments get all the supplies they ask for, without having to prove that they actually need them for immediate use. If such proof were required, allotments might be cut and the suffering from lack of such materials might be somewhat improved.

Whether or not the new defense setup will be able to cut through the confusion surrounding that and similar problems remains to be seen.
Even though most observers are inclined to adopt a "wait-see" policy regarding the reorganization, doubt expressed in some quarters that a new board will be able to function with the efficiency required for maximum defense effort. That cannot be achieved, they insist, by one man control of the entire defense production set-up. The new board lacks authority, and for that reason they are inclined to see in it one instance of the President's reluctance to delegate responsibility.
Any of those who hold this view frequently declared—often for amusement—that the biggest defense bottleneck of all is right on President's desk.

Although the current gasoline crisis affects only the eastern States, Secretary Ickes is on record saying that the rest of the country might have to conserve gasoline—more or less as a disciplinary measure of the belt-tightening in the view of some observers.
No one professes to know whether any attempt will be made to follow up those words with deeds, but persons on the sidelines here seizing on the statement as an example of the confusion that characterizes the whole gasoline issue.

Conflicting rumors and contradictory statements have appeared in a steady stream that no one at moment seems to be entirely sure of the truth really is. In some quarters there is a strong suspicion the entire gas scarcity issue is played up to dramatize the situation. However that may be—and it is only a rumor—the fact remains that official Washington has been extremely reluctant to let the truth out on the facts of the situation.

Present ways of alleviating the gas shortage seem to exist, but whether they will turn out to be the answers to the problem, observers here are willing to say. They do point out, however, that the situation was not to become acute before anything was done about it, and as an example, they cite the fact that a bill to carry petroleum to East refineries was proposed 13 months before any action was taken.

WSS—
Ever criticism they may have with the gas shortage, those familiar with the situation unite in praising the oil industry for the efficiency with which it has tackled its problem. Accelerated construction, maximum use of refineries, barges and trucks—these measures are already being taken by the companies involved.
The situation is admittedly serious and no one seems to know to all the problems involved, officials here believe that government can contribute greatly by abandoning their
"scare" tactics and concentrating on the facts of the case.

Grady Jones, Irving, (Dallas County) has been named the 1940
Texas Champion Holstein-Friesian Calf Club Boy by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Grady is a city boy who joined the 4-H club in 1936 when he first moved to a rural district. His first two cows were grades, which he bought with money he had saved through a school bank deposit system. In 1937 he sold his grade cows and bought a registered Holstein cow and a day old calf. He also bought a day old Holstein bull. This bull and cow were each grand champions at the community fair the first year they were shown. The same fall, the daughter of this first club cow won a third place at the State Fair of Texas. In 1938 at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, his Holstein won fourth place. At the junior short course at the Texas A.
& M. College in 1939, he was on the dairy demonstration team. In March, 1940, he was awarded the Ed Fulton trophy for owning and exhibiting the best dairy heifer. He bought another heifer in March, 1940 from a group which was brought from the north and financed by local organizations. In July, he represented Dallas County on a dairy judging team.
At the state fair in 1940, he bought a bull calf whose sire and dam were each undefeated show champions for the last two years and were grand champions at the state fair. His herd now numbers 12 registered Holsteins and several grades which he expects to eliminate and replace with registered cattle. He has participated in Holstein events whenever possible and has been on several dairy tours and dairy meetings.
Grady Jones is now eligible for consideration for the national championship in 4-H Holstein-Friesian Calf Club work.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

And the huskies, with shot ahead, galloped to the trade-house. There the Camerons were waiting for the girl who had, also, burped her bridge. Shortly, down the cliff trail and over the river-ice raced the team, carrying hope for Craig Galbraith, deep in delirium at Elkwan, ninety white miles away.

As they left the river and turned up the coast, Guthrie's anxious eyes circled the gray horizon for indications of what would follow the haze-smothered sunset over the Keewatin muskeg. For days, now, the weather had softened to above zero temperature, a characteristic of James Bay winters, which are milder than those of the forest country to the south, and he prayed for a bright night, as his thoughts were busy with the tragedy of Craig Galbraith and his own part in the climax of the pitiful history.

The decision he had made beside the bunk in the Ghost, once he had struck on a feasible plan of procedure.

was inevitable to the man who owed his life to the heroism of the stricken Galbraith. But the situation which Guthrie faced as he watched the high barrens of Akimiski catch and hold the veiled light of the dying sun, might easily result not only in dismissal from the company but in arrest by the authorities. His clear duty to his employers had demanded that he report to Cameron the presence of Laughing McDonald at Elkwan. The information that a Hudson's bay factor had concealed from the government a man suspected of murder would raise a hornets' nest in Ottawa. All this Guthrie had seen with clear vision the night before, when he shared his plan with Etienne, but as his eyes rested for an instant on the tragic face of the friend who, that day in front of Amlens, had not counted the cost, there was in his face the look of a man who would repay to the last farthing, Ottawa, the company he had served so well, were nothing. There lay Craig Galbraith, sick, hunted by the law he had defied, deserted—Laughing McDonald, whom he had fought for the trade—his friend, and he would see it through. Craig should have his chance, slight as it looked. With the woman of the great heart and the skilled hands, he was hurrying over the sea-ice as fast as five Ungavas could travel. Hold on, Galbraith, V. C. I as you held at many a disputed parapet and shell-hole!

They had talked little through the first miles, the thoughts of the man centered on his problem. With the skill of long training, she had gone into the details of Etienne's wound, and Garth had had no heart so early in their journey for a confession of his duplicity. But when, off the mouth of the Big Willow, he announced that it was time to rest the dogs and eat the supper prepared by Mrs. Cameron, he felt that, over the hot tea, Joan Quarrier should be told the facts. With the aid of cedar kindlings carried on the sled, he soon had a fire under the teakettle.

"Do you realize how you have ignored your passenger, Mr. Exile? This is my first ride behind the dogs and I wanted to talk about them."

The huskies, except Shot, who was inspecting the willow thicket, were sprawling in their harness, sniffing hungrily at the odor of bacon. Now that he was alone with Joan, was to be alone with her through the long miles to Elkwan, Guthrie felt strangely diffident. Until he had laid the truth before her, told of the love he bore this broken thing, once feared as Laughing McDonald, waiting in such sore need of her ministrations, and received her absolution for his deception, he would feel ill at ease with the woman who faced the world with the stark truth in her eyes.

"Let me see," she went on, "I know Castor and Pollux, but that cream-colored one?"

"Oh, that's Dido," he laughed, "and the white-gray one is Aeneas."

"Aeneas? And does he run away from her like his namesake?"

"Run away? Hardly. She's the fastest dog in the team. What's more, he doesn't try. He's more constant than Virgil's hero."

"What's the name of that surly one, who growls so much?"

"Oh, that's Achilles, of course, the sulker. But he's not so much of a hero. He's deathly afraid of Castor, and Shot fought him to a standstill, once."

Pouring her a cupful of the steaming tea and making a sandwich with the bacon, he passed Joan her supper.

"My, I'm hungry! How good the tea tastes! But aren't the dogs to have some fish after their work?"

"No, they were fed this morning. If I feed them now, it would make them lazy; we wouldn't reach Elkwan before noon, and I'm worried—I'm afraid we're going to be too late as it is."

She looked up, puzzled at his tone. "Why, you said he wasn't bleeding badly—no artery involved. It's only a matter of keeping the wound clean."

The moment had come.

"I have a confession to make to you, Joan Quarrier," he began. "I have lied to you—brought you from a warm shelter up this coast tonight on false pretenses."

"False pretenses! What do you mean?" She was curious but not disturbed.

"I have been the cause of your breaking with the Swans—given the missionary people the chance to raise their saintly eyebrows in horror—for what?"

"Why, my dear man!" she protested, "I understand all that. Their prattle can't hurt me, can it? I don't understand. Where is the lie?"

He sucked in a deep breath and leaned toward her, as he said: "Etienne was not shot. You're on your way to help me save a friend—a friend who crawled with me on his back through gas and shell fire. They broke his arm and got him in the chest, but he came through. Can you guess who it is?"

Her dark brows contracted as she met the pleading look of the man standing by the fire. Slowly she shook her head. "You said Etienne was hurt. Now you say it was some one else—I don't see—"

"Laughing McDonald!"

"Laughing McDonald?" she cried. "You said you found him dead on the schooner?"

"He was alive, but very sick—flu, pneumonia, I'm not sure—Etienne and an Indian took him to Elkwan while I came to ask you to go to help—"

"He was this friend who saved your life—in France?" she asked, wide-eyed with surprise.

"Yes, CAPTAIN—"

"When he disappeared after the murder?" she broke in.

"That is unworthy of Joan Quarrier," he demanded gently.

"But his description tallies with that of the man wanted in Halifax. You forget that I've seen him."

Guthrie warned to the defense of his friend. "Suppose he is the man? Is it strange that a man branded for life with that grimace," he pleaded, "a man, proud, sensitive, coming home with the Victoria Cross—twice won—should go mad when the wife he cherished, as I know he did, turns, in horror of his scars, to a lover? Tell me, is it strange?"

"It was murder," she objected, half-heartedly.

"No, not if the man was struck in the heat of passion—as Galbraith could strike. It was retribution."

"After all, he was a gallant soldier," she mused aloud, "and he saved your life."

Ignoring the inference, Garth pressed his point, for he saw to his joy that his story had touched her. "Think what his bitterness—his agony—must have been, doomed forever to wear that mask, when the woman who should have been proud to bear his name faded him. Imagine his loneliness—his despair, when, in his need, she turned to another."

There was a mist in Joan Quarrier's eyes as she said: "You must have loved him greatly to defend him so well."

"He threw away his hope of reaching the lines, when he followed Shot to my shell-hole and started back with a gassed man; is it strange that I'm fighting for his life, oh, Healer of Wounds?"

For an instant, as he waited for her answer, she met the fierce pleading of his eyes, then looked into the thickening night as she said gently: "You have won. I'll give all I have to save him—for he was a gallant soldier—and has suffered."

Joan Quarrier did not see the pride, the gratitude, and the love that shone down on her from Guthrie's eyes.

For an hour after the stop at the Big Willow for the hot tea the weather had been gradually thickening. As the dogs followed the coast, Guthrie's restless eyes watched the murk slowly blot out the stars. It meant feeling their way past the river mouths; and, across the delta of the Attawapiskat, a sharp watch on the compass to avoid entering the river itself. Clearly caution dictated turning into the Kapiskau and spending the night at the post. But the chance of the man at Elkwan might hang on the hours saved by pushing on through the sable blanket which shrouded the coast. He turned to the girl muffled in robes on the sled behind him.

"It's not going to be cold, but a cold night with the stars would be better than this."

"How can you tell where we're going? I can't see a thing."

"I'm letting Castor pick the trail—just checking him with the compass. It has a luminous dial."

"But he can't see any more than we can."

"A good lead dog has an extra sense—instinct for a trail. Castor has it; that's why he's our lead dog. He has brains, too."

"Where's Shot?"

"Oh, he's following the shore. If he misses us, he'll circle and get our scent."

"Won't he bark?"

"No, he was taught not to—at night. But I must make a decision."

"A decision?"

"We're near the mouth of the Kapiskau. It's going to be slow work—can you stand this till daylight?"

"What has that to do with the Kapiskau?"

"If you're tired—too tired to go on, we can stop at the post." She caught a note almost of appeal in his voice.

"Too tired," she protested, "an army nurse tired when there's a patient to take care of?"

"I know, but it's a bit dangerous, too," he said doubtfully. "Of course—I'd like to keep on—for his sake."

his compass. "If I could only see that shore—the boulders."

Guthrie left the sled, and fastening a long rawhide thong to Castor's collar, cried, "Haw, Castor! We're going ashore to see if we can stumble into those boulders."

But leading his team and at intervals stopping to examine the ice from his knees, to Guthrie's surprise the dogs traveled many hundred yards without reaching the drift and the shell ice of the shore. Was he deep in the mouth of the Kapiskau? And off shore?

He had been too careful to have drifted off toward Akimiski, yet he had traveled a mile straight into the shore without hitting it. The only possible solution was the wide mouth of the Kapiskau—and he had wished to avoid getting into the river—had hoped to pass well outside. Swinging the team into the northwest, he decided to travel by compass for another mile. That would bring him into the north shore, if he were inside the river mouth. It would also—He looked toward the invisible figure on the sled—the girl who had unreservedly placed herself in his hands—who had entered on this voyage of mercy, thoughtless of self. The hands inside his mittens shut convulsively, as a warning Etienne had once given him flashed across his memory. And he had brought her—the thing most precious in the world to Garth Guthrie—into this. Why had he not camped on the Big Willow?

For minutes Guthrie walked ahead of his team, praying for signs in the ice—a gray blur at his feet—of the proximity of the shore. Then—desperate, he stood on the tail of the sled and urged his dogs into a trot, as he checked them from creeping with the luminous dial he held in his mittens. For a space Castor gingerly led the team into the black wall when through the murk sounded a brittle bark.

Aroused, the yelping huskies quickened their pace.

"Shot's found the shore—he smells something," cried Guthrie to the girl in front of him. "Queer, he barked, though!"

Again the rough voice of the alre-dale broke through the pit-like blackness. Castor answered. With a jerk the huskies started into a fast trot.

GO AND DO SOMETHING FOR SOMEBODY QUICK

By Mabel Wilton

Is this the way you feel sometimes?

The whole world has turned against you.

You haven't a single friend. Life is filled with a million worries. That never will come to an end. The future looks dark and depressing. Shadowed with numberless fears, and the day is a hooded monster. Bringing a bounty of tears.

No you needn't tell me, I know, because I have felt the same way myself many times. We all do, my friend, but the more we sit around and lament to ourselves the bigger will be the ditch of self-pity we wallow in.

Do you want to know a real cure for that let-down feeling? No, it doesn't require a Doctor's prescription, or a major operation. It's just a simple remedy anyone with common sense can use, and it doesn't cost a cent, outside of a little exertion.

It is called "Go and do something for somebody quick", and believe me or not it really works wonders, because there is nothing like an appreciative smile, or a happy thanks to cure that all gone feeling in the pit of your stomach.

If you have a good neighbor just walk right over there and tell her how much you think of her, or cut a big slab of that cake you just baked and pass it to her over the backyard fence.

If you are a married man just take your wife home a bunch of violets, or a couple of long stemmed roses. If you are a daughter, then just do something especially nice for mom and dad, and watch their tired faces light up with pleasure and happiness.

If it is mom who has the blue day, then she might slip into a fresh house dress and surprise the family with some favorite dish for dinner. Anyway, no matter who you are, get busy and "do something for somebody quick" and it must be something nice and right away before you change your mind. I will lay a dollar to a nickel bet that you will feel like a new person after you have followed these simple instructions.

Grouching never got anyone very far, and besides it's the worst health destroyer in the world.

"You will shorten the miles by showers of smiles," is a good slogan to adopt and would be a fine one to use every day, for the quickest and surest gloom dispeller is found in making others happy. Just try it and see.

IF YOU HAVEN'T ANY MONEY

By Mary Larkin Cook

Recently I rubbed a large blister on my heel while working in ill-fitting shoes, before I realized it. When I discovered what I had done, something had to be done at once, so I bathed my foot, then opened the blister with a sterilized needle to let out the water. Next I took strips of adhesive tape, placed one over a piece of absorbent cotton which was well dusted with boric acid powder, fastening the ends tightly to my foot with the dusted cotton over the wound. Then I crossed this with another piece of the tape, and went right on with my work. The next day I was not aware of the injury at all and never had cause to refer to it again, for the wound that might have caused an infection, healed quickly.

If you snag your fingers or injure them about your work, if you have no other remedy at hand, suck the wound and be sure it is clean as you can get it, as soon as possible to keep out infection. Even a snake bite or any kind of wound may be safeguarded until you can get to a better remedy. Anyway, take lessons from nature and see what a dog does under similar circumstances. Recently a dog here saved his own life when badly bitten in the face where he could not lick his wounds. He refused to allow anyone to touch him, but he would lick his foot till clean, then wash his face with it, and rub the injured parts, going through the process over and over, until his wounds were clean. Infection set in spite of his remedy, for the injury was serious; but he cured it, and although almost lost one eye, he saved himself alone, by this simple remedy of keeping the wound clean. We might sit at the feet of these children of nature and learn to be wise!

In other words, what should we do when we must do something that must be done? Just use our heads and common sense remedies which after all may be the very best of any. I have a friend who was thought to be past help with a bad wound from an operation. It would not heal for two years because of an infection inside; but the sensible doctor ordered the wound cleansed daily with plain salt water, which finally healed miraculously and left her as good as new. Nature cooperates well if we but give her a hand instead of a fist!

THE SOUTH RETURNS TO LIVESTOCK—"DRIV TO IT BY COMPELLMENT"

"I never would 'a' done it in this world if I hadn't been 'jus' driv to it by compellment." So said an old Negro the other day... and the expression comes to mind when we consider the big increase in livestock in the South, 1930-40. We probably "never would 'a' done it if we hadn't been driv to it by compellment," but anyhow the increase is tremendously gratifying.

Fifty to 60 years ago the South had a pretty high proportion of America's hogs, cows, and sheep; then a great export demand for cotton and tobacco, 1890-1925, made us largely forsake livestock in a rush for money crops but now with the world demanding less cotton and tobacco, Southern farmers are simply returning "by compellment" to the better balanced agriculture of our fathers. Just how far behind we still are in livestock production becomes clearer when we realize that while the 14 Southern States have almost exactly half of the nation's farms, we have only a little over one-fourth of the nation's milk cows, chickens, and sheep as will be seen from the following table:

THE SOUTH'S PERCENTAGE OF THE NATION'S FARMS, ETC.
Percent of the nation's farms	48.5
Percent of the Nation's milk cows	29.6
Percent of the nation's "other cattle"	31.5
Percent of the nation's hogs	32.1
Percent of the nation's sheep	28.3
Percent of the nation's chickens	29.2

All in all and after all, however, the most important thing is that the South is really "returning to livestock". And if we changed our methods only when "driv to it by compellment", we were not different from other people in this respect. And now that we have not only aroused men and women but such a vast army of 4-H club boys and v-o-ag students delightedly working with pigs, calves, sheep, lambs, and poultry, it will not be long till the South becomes the "Land of Flocks and Herds, of Meadows, Silos, and Pastures" without which we cannot have a properly balanced agriculture... and without which our people cannot properly utilize either time or intelligence.—Dr. Clarence Poe, in The Progressive Farmer.

He who wins the most battles when away from them—runs from a mouse when present.

It isn't how old one is, but what he did with his years as they plodded by.

One of the worst providers of all, is the man who builds up a fortune for the world to see at the expense of his own family who pays the bill while he takes the credit—yet he cannot take it with him nor does he gain friends as he goes along.

Some say: "I will help the worthy." Who is to help the unworthy? They get cold and hungry, too; and a hungry man is a determined customer, regardless of who is to blame for his plight. Something must be done about him, also, or he takes another step down hill.

He who loves to learn will never be idle. But he who loves to loaf may soon be faced with not even half a loaf, and that poor dry eating. How can anyone idle his time away in a world so full of interesting things?

Hope leaves the heaviest load and makes it easier to bear. Time softens the sharpest sting, and being busy is a great help when sorrow comes heavily upon us and all but breaks our spirit.

Disaster may be short-lived, but disgrace, never. But if one is certain he had no part in it, and has a clear conscience, he may endure it far better than if he knows within his heart he helped to bring it about.

It is poor policy to bite on a bare hook and get caught without bait.

LA COSTE LEDGERTTES.

The LaCoste Ledger. EIGHT RATTLESNAKES FOUND IN FEED BARN

Mr. O. P. Jungman had an experience on Wednesday afternoon when he does not wish to have repeated. When he went to a barn, from which he had been getting feed daily, he noticed a small rattlesnake coiled up in front of him, promptly killed this one and turned around to find another one coiled while another was coiled up on a bundle of feed he intended to use up, and upon turning over the bundle there was another under it. Of the four Mr. Jungman killed the while one got away. He believes he has a whole nest of the rattlesnakes and probably the old snake nest or under the barn.

Since the above was set in type Mr. Jungman went back to his barn at 5:00 P. M. on the same day and killed four more small rattlesnakes.

TWO CALLS FOR SELECTEES IN MEDINA COUNTY

Call No. 23 under the Selective Service Act, as announced several weeks ago, was for seven selectees from Medina County. This week the Medina County Draft Board announces them as follows: Chester
Alfred Walch, Charles Louis Suehs,
Eddie Make Naegelin, Arthur Milton
Scheible, Emil Albert Mumme, Oscar
Joseph Rohrbach, and Truitt William Melott. These men are to be inducted on September 29th.

Three more calls have been announced. No. 24 and No. 25, for negroes, will be passed in Medina County. Call No. 25 is for fourteen men, the second largest call since the Selective Service Act went into effect last October. The largest was for 16 men. The selectees under Call No. 25 will be inducted October 16th.

INFORMATION FOR SELECTEES

Registrants under the Selective Training and Service Act must promptly notify their local board of any change of address or become liable to severe penalties provided by the Act, General J. Watt Page, State Director, warned them today.

General Page said he had been advised by National Selective Service Headquarters that many cases of delinquencies investigated by the Department of Justice have been due to carelessness of registrants concerning their duty to report changes of address, or ignorance of the law requiring them to do so.

The Selective Service Act provides that any registrant who violates the law shall be liable to fine and imprisonment, the Director pointed out. This punishment, he said, is specified as "by imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

It is the policy of the Selective Service System, General Page stated, and of the Department of Justice which is charged with enforcement of the Act, to take action in those cases where there is willful intent to violate the law. Nevertheless, he stressed, investigation of borderline cases is taking up much valuable time of local boards and of Department of Justice Agents which should be devoted to urgent work for National Defense.

Registrants are, therefore, urged to notify their local boards immediately of any change of address to avoid being reported to the United States District Attorney as a delinquent.

General Page also emphasized that registrants who are expecting to be called into a branch of the armed forces to which they have made application should notify their local boards and report all developments in connection therewith. This, he said, will enable the local board to cooperate with the registrant in his particular ambition to serve his country.

the University of Texas this month,

committee launches its annual orientation work.

The student project is a part of the University's official orientation

to the campus two days before registration dates to acquaint them with professors, courses, and University social life.

Each student big brother or sister assumes responsibility for several freshmen, and helps his "charges"
get acquainted as well as accompanies them to a specially planned freshman party.

On the student orientation committee is Miss Anna Lee McAnelly

QUIHI NOTES

Our Confirmation Day lacked nothing in importance and impressiveness. The eleven young people whose names were previously mentioned, gave fair proof that their instruction was not in vain. After an appropriate sermon, the confirmation blessings were bestowed upon them individually, while kneeling at the altar. With songs of praise they had marched in, concluded their examination and their rites, and marched out under the prayers of the many who had attended the solemn occasion. The choir gave its usual fine contributions, the decorated church, and also the new coat of white in door and windows, plus the part-coat of the Parish Hall, all this gave the hour a fine and highly suitable setting. May the Lord guard the future of these confirmands and keep their way heavenward bound!

The evening of the same day brought us another program of our Luther League, and we are glad to say that our working "crew", the contributors in every department, never tire in their efforts to put up a sizable and bright program, though we often must resort to willing substitutes. And we usually have the pleasure of seeing a goodly number of visitors present, now these many years without "rest-periods", kind people who appreciate these efforts for their enjoyment and who, beyond a doubt, take something worthwhile along with them for the new week. Our invitation to members and friends is a standing one. Come, some day, and see and hear. For the October program, we give, among many others, these numbers: Select readings, Mrs. Roy Dailey, Elton Jay Hartmann, Wilfred
Schulte; vocal numbers, Miss Lucille Boehle, Mrs. Elmer Nietenhoefer, Mrs. Roy Bohlen; instrumental number, Miss Hertha Weber. We were glad to welcome Miss Ethel Marie Lindeburg as a new member.

A preliminary announcement for our Mission-festival. We have scheduled two services for that day, October 5. It's part of our Lord's work in this world, and you, as a Christian, are His fellow-laborer.
I'm sure, you will not deny Him your willing co-operation. Please remember the date and join the willing workers of God.

As far as we know at this writing,
Mr. C. H. Fuos is still making visible progress towards full recovery. The rain, welcome otherwise in general, has prevented several planned visits, but we found Mrs. Emil Graff quite improved after a number of painful days and hours. Her buoyantly mirthful spirits are fast returning.

Announcements for September 21:
Sunday school and Bible class at 9;
confessional service in English, 9:45;
German service at 10; administration of the Lord's Supper. No evening service. "Who among you will give ear to this? who will hearken and hear for the time to come?"

IN THE LEGISLATURE

By Rep. Magus F. Smith

The Legislature convened in Special Session on Tuesday, September 16, 1941, at 12 o'clock noon. Soon after its adjournment, the House and Senate met in joint session to hear a special message from Governor Coke Stevenson. The Governor, in his message, urged the Legislature to immediately solve the bond assumption question by passing some kind of a compromise measure.

Immediately thereafter, a bill was introduced in the House and Senate by various members setting forth the Governor's so-called "Compromise Bill". This bill provided that out of the one cent gasoline tax set aside for servicing road bonds, a sufficient sum be set aside to pay the annual installments on road bonds, which were taken over by the district and county road bond indebtedness board two years ago and that the remainder left over, after servicing these bonds, be expended for the purpose of paying off indebtedness of various counties, which were created by the purchasing of highway right-of-ways.

Some of the Legislators objected to this bill, because of the fact that their counties had paid cash for right-of-ways and therefore would get nothing under this bill because they had no right-of-way indebtedness.

Rep. Henry Lehman introduced in the House another bill, House Bill
No. 6, which would service the bonds and leave the remainder of the surplus on hand in the banks to be disposed of later. His argument being that we would at least service the bonds, then if we could not reach an agreement later on, the counties would be protected.

The proponents of the other bills felt that it is better to solve the question of what is to be done with the surplus now while the members are under pressure to do something.
Otherwise, they feel that nothing will be done until the next session and the surplus will have grown to about $5,000,000.00 instead of $2-600,000.00. Also, there would be a $2,000,000.00 surplus lying in the banks drawing no interest and doing the State no good.

The Senate took up the Governor's bill and amended it to provide that the money should be first used to pay off the bonds and after the bonds had been paid off, the first $2,000,000.00 of the surplus to be set aside in a special fund to be known as the Lateral Roads Fund.
If there is a sum remaining over the $2,000,000.00, then this is to be spent by the Highway Department and the Lateral Roads Fund.

This Lateral Roads fund would be expended for the purpose of building Farm-to-Market roads over the State under the supervision of the Highway Department.

This Senate Bill was passed in that manner Thursday afternoon and is now before the House for consideration.

It is hoped that the Legislature will be able to reach some kind of an agreement so that we will be able to adjourn within ten days after we have assembled here.

COL. ROGERS 24 YEARS IN ARMY

Wheeler Field, Aug. 22.—A veteran of 24 years continuous military service, Lt. Col. Joe C. Rogers, recently assigned to Wheeler field from Schofield Barracks, has had a most interesting army career. He enlisted in August 1917, just as the warlord of Mars was flaming across Europe.

With the entry of the United States into the World War, Col.
Rogers went over with the 77th field artillery and served in France from June 1918 to August 1919. He fought in the battles of Meuse Argonne, St. Mihiel, Aisne Marne and Chateau Thierry.

When the armistice became a reality, Col. Rogers returned to the United States, where he was assigned to the 11th cavalry at Monterey, Cal. In 1920, he was promoted to the rank of captain. He attended the cavalry school, basic, from 1924 to 1925, at Ft. Riley, Kan., and the advanced equitation class the following year. Then came a three year tour of duty with the 2nd cavalry at Ft. Riley and upon completion, Col.
Rogers served as cavalry instructor with the Idaho national guard for four years, upon completion of which, he was assigned to the 4th cavalry at Ft. Mead, South Dakota.

In 1934, Col. Rogers again served overseas, this time in the Philippines.
He was stationed with the 26th cavalry at Ft. Stotsenberg and in 1935, received the gold leaf of major.
Back to the United States, upon expiration of Philippine service, to serve at Rio Grande City, Texas, with the 12th cavalry. Incidentally, Col. Rogers was 20 years in the service before he was stationed in his home state.

He then attended the quartermaster corps school at Philadelphia until 1940, when his transfer from the cavalry was effected that same year.
In August of 1940, he was promoted to lieutenant colonel. A year later, he was assigned to the quartermaster department at Wheeler, after serving in the same branch at Schofield Barracks. This sums up 24 years of meritorious service with the army.

Col. and Mrs. Rogers have one son, Joe C. Rogers Jr.—Hawaii newspaper.

Col. Rogers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Rogers of Hondo.

ANVIL SPARKS

which we would not suppress if we could, and the gracious welcome given by the younger generation of nieces, nephews and cousins is sufficient to compensate for much of the loss we feel in the rapidly thinning ranks of our own generation.

We are glad we went.

We are glad we are Home again!

Your friends in Marshall county and vicinity are glad you came, Fletcher, but the Editor of the South Reporter deeply regrets that he was at Hot Springs, Ark., on vacation when you called to see your old friend and teacher.

Among the pleasant pictures that hang on memories wall, none shines brighter than that of the days when you were my pupil in the old Mt. Pleasant High School.—The South Reporter, Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 11, 1941, C. H. Curd, Editor.

One of the chief disappointments incident to our trip was the failure to again meet our former teacher friend whom we last met in Memphis in 1909.

To still have the friendship and good will of boyhood friends is to take from the tragedy of growing old some of its pain.

TWO YEARS OF WAR

Two years ago the National Government stood for "neutrality", the importance of which was an apparent determination to stay out and away from Old World wars, and—definitely: Lend no money to European nations.

In twenty-four months we have reversed our position. The Administration and Congress, and the American people are agreed upon policies to back England with all-out aid, and loans, food, armament, ships, and a blockade against the Axis forces. We are in everything except the shooting.

Our Government took over control of an airplane factory and a shipbuilding plant. Manufacturers have been called on to decrease their regular lines of production in order to increase the output of defense materials for our own Nation, and as aid to England and others.

Scarcities of materials include steel, aluminum, and other articles in long lists, called "priorities". Administration activities have been halted on many anti-trust and monopoly inquiries. Legislative action has paused in laying down hard and fast rules over such matters as currency control, and inflation.

Taxation, installment buying, rationing of oil, price-ceiling and control of costs of food, agricultural commodities, wage, production of automobile and refrigerator machinery are new puzzles, to which are added fresh responsibilities concerning health, welfare, and thousands of unfamiliar new problems.

Those periods between the Civil War, Spanish-American War, the World War, did not create such tremendous changes as have taken place in the past two years.

If we actually keep out of this war, and as long as we "keep our heads cool", and refrain from joining in Old World tragedies of shooting, we stand excellent chances of preserving the Democracies of the Western Hemisphere and returning in due time to our peacetime habits and responsibilities.

And there you have the substance and the summary of a thousand editorials from newspapers all over our broad land, plus the interpretations of past events and future expectations, by the ablest columnists and commentators from coast to coast.—National News Service.

POLITICAL CUSHION NO SHOCK ABSORBER

When a house is afire people do funny things—like the lady who threw her mirror out of the window and carried her coat on her arm.

For some years past, many of us have been blinded by a smoke screen of "emergency," and have been throwing some of our best possessions out of the window as a "remedy."

Now, with the greatest emergency of all facing us, we stand to lose the very substance of our independence if we don't waken from a hypnotic spell under which we have been made to think we must look to the government largesse for our sustenance and livelihood.

Government has become so great in the lives of millions of citizens, that a great proportion of our population actually feels that it is incapable of caring for itself. Those who would bring about a more complete socialized form of government, are using the defense emergency to the utmost to extend their official control over the individual and industry in many fields, beyond war necessities.

We have long seen the trend developing to nationalize the electric industry, banking, real estate operations and other activities too numerous to mention. We now see it extended to the oil industry, and quietly but insidiously to the coal industry.

try. State's rights, as well as individual rights, are ruthlessly destroyed in this process.

If our primary natural resources, such as electricity, oil and coal, can be sufficiently Federalized, the foundation is laid for national socialism a la Germany. The existence of virtually all business, large or small, is wrapped up in our basic industries. The inevitable result of socialization of industry is the creation of a vast and invincible political bureaucracy with power concentrated in the hands of the few. That is the most obvious lesson that present-day Europe has to teach us.

It is the will and determination of those in high places to retain democracy in this country, not emasculate it, that our people should watch today.

State's rights and individual rights are wrapped up in the issue of encouraging and protecting the American private enterprise system. Don't be blinded by the argument that government can do everything for states and individuals, better than they can do it for themselves.

We must not be deluded with any idea that we can throw the private enterprise system out of the window and carry some socialized political cushion to absorb the shock.—Industrial News Review.

THE DRAFT EXTENSION

It was to be expected there would be a congressional stew when the original draft year-limit came up for extensions. To a bystander, it looks like just another broken covenant. The boys were promised their training would be for one year only and that none of them would be sent to Europe.

The boys have lived up to their part of the program—they had to or be sent to jail. Their government has welched on them, and it is but natural that they should feel they have been roused.

It may be argued that the emergency is now more acute. As a matter of fact the probability of disaster abroad looked worse a year ago than now. When the President as a candidate for re-election for a third term was in the midst of his campaign, France, Holland, Norway and Belgium were conquered and it looked pretty black for England. He assured the boys that the training for a year would be beneficial and that under no circumstances would they be sent to Europe to fight.

Our boys will have to get accustomed to deception. They will have to learn that their government doesn't always shoot straight.

Congressman Ross Collins, military affairs authority, says we don't need a big army. He says we need machines. Others say we haven't the materials needed for training the men now in uniform.

Anyway war is in the air. We are already in Europe at Iceland. We are in Asia. Nothing one says or writes is of much effect unless he waves a bloody shirt or has a good war cry. We are a people of emotions, and war grows in popularity. Men must fight! We should, however at least have frankness from our leadership—soldiers and civilians are entitled to the truth, and so far they haven't had it.—Clayton Rand in The Dixie Guide.

KEEP WELL IN HOT WEATHER

Keeping well in summer depends more upon the habits and surroundings of the individual than upon the weather. Essentials are proper food, exercise, and rest, along with home sanitation. Less food is needed; meats, starchy foods, and sweets produce body heat and should be eaten in moderation. The diet should consist largely of vegetables and fruits, and plenty of water. All foods should be protected from flies and eaten while fresh.

Outdoor exercise is needed, especially by women and girls and indoor workers; walking is excellent. And there should be a daily bath to remove body wastes brought out in perspiration, and to keep the skin pores open and active. The bowels, too should be kept open, but if a vegetable diet is eaten and enough exercise taken, no trouble should be experienced with the bowels.—Dr. B. E. Washburn, in The Progressive Farmer.

Will Rogers said:
Europe tells us they want our moral leadership and moral responsibility and tells us we are so big, and so strong, and so wonderful, and so marvelous.
But they're the same folks that call us Uncle Shylock and monkey grabbers and blatant and ill-mannered, and all the time talk in about how we won the war.
I don't see how them two ideas work out together. I think we should be sympathetic toward European nations and all that, but we don't have to marry Europe. And when the country finds itself married to Europe there ain't none of this divorce in Reno by noon. Say, listen, you're tied up and goin' to find it hard to break loose. And then they'd sue us for non-support.

ON DRESSES NEW OR OLD

Dresses short or dresses long, Always some extreme, Each in turn comes back in style To bring us worries for awhile So we'll have to go and buy Garments new at prices high When our duds are good as new, So we don't know what to do—O how style makers scheme!

Waiter: "Wasn't that egg cooked long enough?"
Customer: "Yes, but not soon enough."

MR. RABBIT VS. MR. SCARECROW

Lawdy! At duh scarecrow flappin' in duh breeze, Ole Mr. Rabbit bin eatin' up duh peas,
Ole Mr. Rabbit bin nibblin' cabbage too,
Lawdy! Mr. Scarecrow what cha goin' do?
Ole Mr. Rabbit come sneakin' 'fo' its light,
Sees Mr. Scarecrow standin' there in white,
Thinks Mr. Rabbit "I gotta move peart Farmer Smith's out early in his ole nightshirt."

"I'll edge a little closer and take 'nother nip"
Waves Mr. Scarecrow when duh wind goes zip, Whirls Mr. Rabbit scampers out o' sight,
"Farmer Smith acts funny—must be a little tight."

Shucks! Mr. Rabbit ain't cha gotta mite o' sense?
That ain't Farmer Smith a standin' by duh fence—
Jist a pair o' breeches on a forked pole
A hat on one end, duh other in a hole.

A COUNTRY BOY'S LOVE LETTER

Dear Louise:—
The night we tripped through the new-mown hay,
Changed a life, as we stood near the stile.
How gracious of you, to fare the way,
With your fair-haired boy, so sweet a while.
I loved you then, in my kind of best,
And if it was else, I wonder what?
If I built a shrine inside my breast,
Would it be a more entrancing spot?

But my dear Louise, you'll never find
A cause to harbor the slightest doubt,
That will ever make me change my mind,
'Til the fire of the stars burn out,
And tho' you tell me, I must go,
And can you fathom what I'd say:
My answer to you, will be just NO.
We both must go the self-same way.

I'm writing these lines, with stars between

And I hope you'll know, dear, what they mean.
—THOMAS DOUDIEN.

LAKE HAMILTON

O'er rocks and hills, where beauty thrills,
Where life is glad and free,
We sought to find sweet peace of mind,
Where none but God could see.

And as we stood, in rapturous mood,
By tranquil waters deep,
There came to sight a glorious light,
The moon rose o'er the deep.

And o'er the lake she seemed to make,
A ribbon spun of gold,
Where in the night's refulgent light,
The gentle waves enfold.

So full and bright this ball of light,
Shone o'er the waters deep,
And such a night, with visions bright,
In memory's shrine will keep.
—JESSIE MAHAFFEY.

WOODLAND VIOLETS

Woodland Violets
All purple-blue,— Memories.
You and I Strolling
Hand in hand.

Your eyes—
Radiant
With love.

And I—Bewitched—
Content.

Then—you
Went away.
So, like that

Purple broidered day
Your love
Soon passed.

Leaving
Violets—
Memories.

THE OREGON TRAIL

Along the Platte
Can you see the herds of buffalo,
Great black clouds of yesterday,
Flanking the shallow Platte and low?

White topped wagons, shifting slow,
Corralled by night, unloosed by day,
Can you see the herds of buffalo?

Indians hunting to water's flow,
Following bison every day,
Flanking the shallow Platte and low.

Gone now the wagons that travelled slow,
Only in ghosts of yesterday
Can you see the herds of buffalo.

Not a trace left of the immigrant tow,
Enroute to Oregon along this way,
Flanking the shallow Platte, and low.

The Plains stretching bare, the hills rising low,
Are all that remember, as yet they say,
"Can you see the herds of buffalo
Flanking the shallow Platte and low?"

TRAILER VAGABONDS

There are dark shady patches in the fields about
And soft cool spaces up in the summer sky,
The miles that we go are of an easy count
To campfires lighted while Whip-Poor-Will's cry.

Weird are ghostly noises of the woodland night;
Some are trysting cries from furry swains,
Stealthy tread of spooks robed in moldy white;
For all we know trapesing of fairy trains.

This is the night that we do not fear:
A pleasing mystery cloaks its grey gadabout.
Nell and I, bearing our scanty gipsy gear,
Have charged it all to a friendly account.

In their toil-bogged towns we tarry none;
The harnessed slave tread offers no appeal.
We are gentlemen travelers, our tourney begun
Before Esau traded wealth for urgent meal.

The Great One in making you made also us.
He planned this show: fiasco or carnival,
We obey life's urge sans whip or blunderbuss,
We go our way until a Great Voice shall call.

We go to no wars, neither destroy, kill nor maim:
The blood lust of rulers urges wholesale massacre;
Proclaiming "Freedoms" they smear a bloody claim:
Displacing liberty for disgust and bleak-eyed fear.

God speaks through nature which neither wars nor slaves;
We understand but little, but that must suffice.
We are not troubled, we build no prisons, dig no graves,
We trouble none and thus we round our span of life.

DESERTED FARM

Long we have watched its slow decay,
As countless melting winter snows
Have lain on sunken rooftop's slope;
Great yawning ditches soon disclose Tall weeds and briars that tangle in
The cracked and now-neglected soil,
While sagging fence and leaning post
Bear witness to once fruitful toil.

We watch again as spring's first winds
Touch gently door and window sill;
Too long abuse has borne it down—
No verdant spring can ever spill
Her magic potion on this place;
But look—a new and virgin morn
Has broken winter's frozen spell—
A rose has struggled through the thorn!

—EDYTHE HOPE GENE.

DELUSION

I have spent months trying to forget you.
Feeling sure I would some day,
But you're still as fresh in memory,
As the day you went away.

I can see you just as plainly—
Your dark hair, your eyes, your face,
How I wish I might forget you,
Not recall one single trace.

You are traveling the wide world over,
Going here and going there,
And I know that you've forgotten.
Why oh why do I still care.

But tomorrow I will forget you,
Time shall heal my grief and pain.
One more hour of sweet remembering,
I'll not think of you again.
